SIMULATION
Academy of the Society for Academic Emergency Medicine

Fellows Forum
Call for Submissions

The SAEM Simulation Academy is inviting submissions* from simulation fellows to present briefly on their fellowship research projects at the SIM Academy Business Meeting on May 16, 2019, at SAEM19 in Las Vegas, Nevada. Submissions will be accepted for research proposals/projects that are at any stage of the process (e.g., planning, just started, data analysis, etc.). All submissions should follow the Abstract Submission Guidelines. If selected, each fellow will have 5-6 minutes to present his or her research project. The audience will then have 3-4 minutes to provide presenters with directed feedback.

Submissions will be accepted until March 15, 2019. Submit your presentation or abstract to: SimFellows@saem.org

Due to time restrictions, 10 fellows will be able to present their research to the Simulation Academy membership. If more submissions are received, they will be evaluated and rated based on originality, potential contribution to the simulation community, and scientific rigor. Submissions that are not presented orally will be displayed as posters in the Simulation Academy meeting room. Time will be given before and after the presentation session for faculty to review and provide feedback on these projects.

Not only does the Simulation Academy Fellows Forum give fellows the opportunity to present at a national meeting, it also provides fellows with direct access to faculty from a broad number of institutions who may have some experience with your area of interest and can provide suggestions that will significantly improve your projects. The Simulation Academy Fellows Forum is considered a national presentation and as such is an academic jump start for the fellow.

*Note: A submission means that the fellow plans to attend SAEM's annual meeting.