

Call for Social Media Editor

The Academic Emergency Medicine Education and Training (AEM E&T) editorial board is searching for a volunteer social media editor to help grow our social media presence. The social media editor will be responsible for tweeting about AEM E&T articles and sharing and retweeting relevant academic emergency medicine (EM) news and information, as well as growing the number of account followers and increasing engagement with the target audience of emergency medicine program directors, department chairs, educators, and interested researchers and clinicians.

While the social media editor is a volunteer, unpaid position, it offers important professional benefits that will enrich your CV, enhance your influence, and broaden your network. Further, the social media editor will be an integral part of the AEM E&T editorial board by shaping the messaging and expanding the reach of the journal. As a member of the AEM E&T editorial board, the social media editor will be listed on the publication masthead and corresponding journal webpages.

Interested applicants can send their CV and cover letter to tcraig@saem.org. Applications are due by December 1, 2021.