NORTHEAST REGIONAL EMERGENCY MEDICINE INTEREST GROUP SYMPOSIUM

We plan to host an Emergency Medicine Interest Group Symposium in the spring of 2016 at the Hofstra North Shore-LIJ School of Medicine at Hofstra University. The goal of this event is to provide medical students with an avenue to explore and expand on their interest in Emergency Medicine while simultaneously providing a valuable educational experience to all attendees. The event will be free to all medical students interested in attending. The focus of the symposium will be driven by a Clinical Pathological Conference (CPC) style case presented at the end of the one-day symposium. Both large and small group sessions will address clinical aspects of this case. The large group sessions will feature content experts leading interactive talks on EM medicine and the approach to clinical emergencies related to the CPC case. Small group sessions will feature a hands-on approach to essential exam skills generally overlooked in the undergraduate medical education such as ultrasound. The small group sessions will consist of 10 students led by an attending and resident EM physician. The final CPC case, led by Dr. Gino Farina, will allow students to use the knowledge gained throughout the day to address an ambiguous patient in a team based learning format. The symposium will conclude with an informal networking event featuring Residency Directors from surrounding Emergency Medical Residency Programs. Students can interact with and ask questions of these prestigious members of Emergency Medicine.
